Pathways to Fluency

Cultural Survival Through Language Revitalization

December 12 – 15, 2016

Isleta Casino and Resort
Albuquerque, NM

Our indigenous languages are the sacred breath that connects us to our families, communities and our environment. We must do all we can to keep our languages alive. The Pathways to Fluency: Cultural Survival Through Language Revitalization gathering brings together Native communities, indigenous language researchers, philanthropic organizations and federal agencies to discuss strategic directions for language revitalization from birth to eight years old.

While every community's pathway to fluency is different, this gathering will focus on the challenges and opportunities that we share, and aims to create a 'blueprint' that can help communities map out a pathway towards fluency.
